Sumpter adopts new Community Risk Reduction Program

A Community Risk Reduction Program was unanimously approved by members of the Sumpter Township Board of Trustees during their meeting March 23.

In addition to offering free smoke detectors and carbon monoxide detectors, along with assistance in installing the devices for all residents, the program is designed to prepare and educate both public safety first responders and families with special needs members in advance of an emergency situation.

> The plan includes sensory kits for all the township police patrol cars and the three fire engines.

The program, a product of research Fire Department Lt. Jaime Goode completed during his classes at Fire Staff and Command School, has received widespread attention and acclaim for being pro-active with special needs families in the community. It is being adopted in multiple communities throughout the state and at the federal level.

The program takes pre-emptive action to ensure that emergency personnel have the information necessary to locate and communicate with special needs children, concentrating primarily on those on the autism spectrum, Goode explained. In Sumpter, he will make a personal visit to the homes of families with autistic children to determine through a questionnaire the specific medical needs of the occupants, favorite toys or music of children, favorite TV shows and the triggers that could result in a mental health episode. That information will be available to first responders using the address of the home so that should there be a call for service, police or fire, the information about the special needs of any occupant would be avail-

Boogie Nights

Dads and daughters got their "boogie" on in Romulus recently and didn't let the pandemic interfere with the annual Daddy-Daughter dance in the area. Recreation planners in the city moved the event to the city parking lot where the couples could show off their dance moves during the Daddy-Daughter Parking Lot Disco event. There were bell-bottom pants, platform shoes, pony tails and even an Afro wig demonstrating the true 1970s spirit of the event. An obvious success with the participants, the event also drew praise and two awards from the mParks and mParks Professional Recognition Committee who presented the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department with an "Innovative Programming" award this year. Officials said in a prepared release that the recreation department has made a commitment to continue to host family-friendly events during the COVID-10 pandemic and offer residents creative recreational experiences.

'Shamrock' hunt proves successful

Members of the Noon Rotary Club in Plymouth demonstrated their commitment to the well being of the community recently with a donation of up to $10,000 to help local businesses survive during the ongoing pandemic.

The club, in partnership with the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), sponsored the successful Shamrock on the Shelf scavenger hunt through downtown Plymouth last month. The Rotary club bought $25 gift cards from participating businesses that posted the colorful Shamrocks for the scavenger hunt. With more than 350 participants, the result was the purchase of $300 in gift cards purchased directly from 30 participating businesses that were given away.

"The Rotary Club of Plymouth sponsored the scavenger hunt to support local businesses that have supported our club and efforts for decades," said John Buzuvis, club president. "Much like our club, the local businesses are woven into the fabric of the community and our support of them is critical during this unprecedented time.

"The scavenger hunt was an opportunity to provide a free, family friendly activity in our own community, raise awareness about Rotary and support our local businesses by directly purchasing gift cards from them," he said.

As the pandemic has caused a year of financial instability for most business owners, Plymouth Downtown Development Authority chairperson and the owner of her own downtown Plymouth business, Agio Spa di Reposo, Kerri Pollard said the Shamrock on the Shelf scavenger hunt not only put money into the pockets of those fighting to stay in business, participants are noticing businesses they haven't visited before.

"I am so appreciative of the Rotary Club's generous donation to downtown Plymouth businesses, as both a business owner and DDA board member," said Pollard. "It has been a difficult year for all of us and to have happy, excited people coming into our spa looking for shamrocks and engaged in finding out what DTP (Downtown Plymouth) has to offer is great. We had old friends and lots of new potential guests of all ages find us over the past week."

The event continued through March 28.

Wayne Main Street faces funding crisis

The COVID-19 pandemic is threatening yet another entity in the City of Wayne.

Wayne Main Street, a 501 (c) (3) non profit organization which works to improve the retail and environment of the downtown area, is feeling the impact of the lack of donations during the past year.

"All of our operating costs, including the required salary of our director, are raised through donations from the public, corporate sponsorships and fundraising events," noted Juan Bradford, president of Wayne Main Street in a recent communication to members and the general public.

"Previously, the City of Wayne DDA (Downtown Development Authority) provided annual funding to Wayne Main Street. The DDA stopped providing any funding to Wayne Main Street during the 2019-2020 budget year and has not committed to any future financial assistance to our organization. With the onset of the pandemic, in-person fundraising and donations came to a screeching halt. The ability to raise operating revenue all but ceased," Bradford said in the letter.

> Our organization only has enough operating revenue to survive through the end of May, 2021.

"We are very proud of all that we have been able to accomplish over the last seven years. There is no way any of it would have happened without the financial support of our many donors and the thousand of hours that all of the countless volunteers contributed to making it possible. And so, it is with a heavy heart that we report that our organization only has enough operating revenue to survive through the end of May, 2021. Unless a significant sponsorship or funding source is identified, our last event will be to co-host the downtown Spring Clean-Up which will be held on April 24 and 9 a.m. in Goudy Park," Bradford continued.

Bradford listed the many events and resources the organization had provided to the community including the

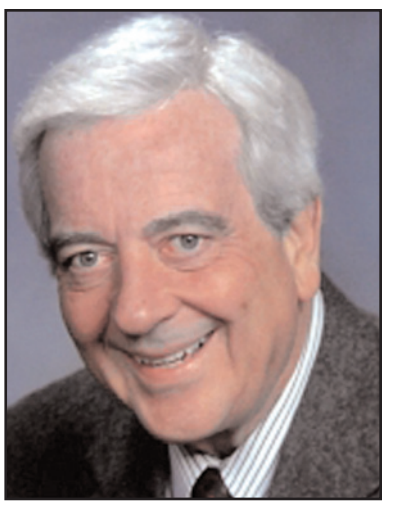
Area mourns death of attorney Don Morgan



Donald Morgan

Well-known Plymouth attorney Donald "Don" Crane Morgan, 80, passed away peacefully at Angela Hospice on March 26, 2021. A long-time resident of Plymouth, he was a pillar of his church and community for more than 55 years.

Mr. Morgan was born in Detroit to Nancy Crane Morgan on Sept. 17, 1940. He attended Lakewood High School, and after becoming president of the senior class, finally got a date with Judy Munro, his wife of 58 years.

Like his mother, Mr. Morgan attended Ohio Wesleyan University, where he joined Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SAE), and made many lifelong friends. After graduating in 1962, he often returned there with his wife, most recently for his 55th graduating class reunion.

In 1965, Mr. Morgan graduated from the University of Michigan Law School, and he and his wife moved to Livonia. It was there Mrs. Morgan, a third-grade teacher, met fellow teacher, Judy Chauvin, and her then husband, Paul Chauvin. The couple would later become "uncle and aunt" to the Morgan children, and go-to travel companions. On their trips, the men would engage in various shenanigans including using aliases and accents.

The Morgans moved to Plymouth in 1965 and he was immediately involved in the community including Rotary, where he served as president from 1985-86 and The First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth where he served as an elder; a member of session; as president of the finance committee; ran the audio visual equipment, and shared his strong baritone with the choir. Mr. Morgan would later become a representative to the Presbytery of Detroit, a role his family said he found both challenging and rewarding.

Mr. Morgan joined Wayne II Republicans in 1979, becoming chairman in 1992. He also served on the board of Growth Works, Easter Seals, and Presbyterian Village.

Mr. Morgan was predeceased by his son, Donald M. Morgan (Donny). In addition to his wife, Judy Munro Morgan, he is survived by his daughter, Wendy Morgan Crowther, and son-in-law Marty Crowther; Donny's former-wife, Ann Morgan Belyk; her husband, Nick Belyk; grandchildren Brady Morgan and Abbie Belyk; granddaughters Makayla Morgan (daughter of Amanda Parrish Hunley), and Julia and Cece Crowther.

While his wife was the love of his life, Mr. Morgan also loved being a lawyer, reading, all things history, playing golf, summer and winter sports in Harbor Springs, music, and telling long, long stories to anyone who would listen, until a stroke took his speech in 2015, his family recalled.

Mr. Morgan was a lawyer his entire adult life, working first as a partner at Kerr, Russell & Weber in Detroit, briefly at Draugelis & Ashton, in Plymouth and finally on his own on Main Street. He received numerous professional honors and accolades, but will best be remembered as a devoted husband, "Poohbah" to his grandchildren, and as a leader in his church and community.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 701 Church St., Plymouth, Michigan 48170, Hope Clinic, P.O. Box 980311, Ypsilanti, Michigan 48198, or to a charity of choice.

Due to the current COVID-19 restrictions, services for Mr. Morgan will take place at a later date.

The Easter Bunny Express recently traveled to St. Thomas a'Becket Church and two other neighborhoods as Canton Leisure Services and the Canton Public Safety Department helped residents celebrate Easter and spring cheer. About 150 residents were able to have their photo taken with the Easter Bunny and enjoy Easter candy. In addition, participants were able to choose from donated items collected by St. Thomas a'Becket Church, including: reusable bags, raincoats, rain boots, hats, gloves, sports equipment, arts and crafts kits, toys, as well as personal care items such as shampoo, toothpaste, bath gels and more. "These types of special events help strengthen our community while providing a fun and supportive experience for the participating families," said Laura Mortier, Canton recreation specialist. "Canton Leisure Services and Canton Public Safety's partnership with St. Thomas a'Becket is an indispensable part of the equation which helps us meet a critical community need that would be difficult to fulfill without their support." This special Easter Bunny Express was designed to engage community members in a personalized festive celebration, as well as provide an opportunity to enhance camaraderie and provide an opportunity for community members to come together in a safe and positive environment, officials said.

WAYNE - WESTLAND

Marijuana licensing system prompts multiple lawsuits

The awarding last month of the first marijuana licenses in Westland has already been challenged in court by several business owners who were not granted the conditional licenses.

One of the lawsuits, filed by attorney Anthony Bologna representing MHS Westland, resulted in the issuance of a temporary restraining order by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge John Gilllis, preventing the licensing process from proceeding. Bologna also filed a similar lawsuit on behalf of another client seeking a marijuana license in the city, Harper Ventures, LLC.

The 5-2 vote of council members took place during the March 15 meeting and granted licenses to seven retail marijuana operations in the city. Council members determined which applicants would receive permission to proceed using a scoring system which awarded points for various aspects of the proposed businesses, including the remediation and or clean up of sites in disrepair in the city. Bologna, on behalf of his two clients, is challenging the accuracy of the scoring system, claiming that the scoring method was flawed and that his clients deserve a more accurate accounting of their plans for the establishment they proposed.

Bologna claims in the lawsuit that the MHS Westland business was planning to demolish an existing building and construct a new store. He said that his clients deserve consideration of the reconstruction which should be included in the final scoring. He said his client was denied eight points which should have been awarded due to the asbestos and other contaminants found in the current building which would have been remediated with the new construction.

Lawsuits have also been filed by attorneys from Pollicella, PLLC and Bahoura Law, representing three other marijuana retailers who were seeking licenses in Westland. They, too, claim that the city scoring system was unfair and not compliant with state law regarding licensing marijuana sellers.

Another lawsuit, filed on behalf of three other businesses seeking licenses, made arguments that the city scoring rubric was not in line with standards as set by the Michigan Regulation and Taxation of Marihuana Act. The lawsuit claims using criteria used doesn't fall within the scope of the law.

Westland Mayor William R. Wild said the lawsuits were not unexpected.

"We have to let the legal process play itself out to see what the next steps are in the process for getting marijuana facilities open up in the city as the citizens indicated they wanted and city council has approved," Wild said in a prepared statement.

Westland officials received 36 applications for eight licenses for marijuana sales in the city. The decisions and scoring by the members of the marijuana selection committee was appealed by 27 of the applicants. Licenses were granted to Karvol, 37435 and 37601 Cherry Hill; LJA Holdings LLC, 37570 Cherry Hill; Quality Roots on the northwest corner of Cherry Hill and Newburgh; Thanos LLC on the southwest corner of Inkster and Ann Arbor Trail; Common Citizen, 37655 Ford Road; Belal Elayan, 38400 Abruzzi and Unique Testing Solutions, 5838 Executive Dr.

The no votes on the approved licenses were cast by Councilman Peter Herzberg and Councilwoman Tasha Green who both expressed concern regarding the proximity of several of the proposed marijuana outlets.

Westland sidewalk renewal program wins national honor

Another Westland project has been honored as an outstanding civic improvement.

Last week, the Shuman Sidewalk project in the city was named as the winner of the American Public Works Association (APWA) 2020 Michigan Project of the Year Award in the category of "Quality of Life Projects less than $1 Million." Construction for the project was completed in August 2020 at a cost of $208,000. Funding for the project was provided by a SEMCOG grant through the Transportation Alternatives Program (TAP), which aims to support intermodal forms of transportation, according to City of Westland officials.

The project included the construction of an 1,820-foot long sidewalk on the West side of Shuman Street from Palmer to Fairchild Street. Prior to the project, the existing sidewalk was only continuous on the east side of Shuman. The area was identified as a non-ADA compliant road crossing while it served as the principal access to Adams Middle School. This sidewalk construction was also identified in the city 2017 Master Plan as a priority area to increase sidewalk connectivity and walkability. The project also addressed drainage issues along the street through the installation of culverts under driveways along the road, officials said.

> Creating a more walkable Westland by closing gaps in the city's sidewalk network is a core component of the city's Neighborhood Makeover Program.

Construction was completed by Erie Construction, LLC based in Woodhaven and engineering was provided by OHM Advisors.

Receipt of the Project of the Year award from the Michigan Chapter of the APWA makes the project eligible for award consideration at the national level. Other Westland projects have received significant recognition over the past 5 years including: 2016: Westland City Hall, National Award Winner (Structures $5 - $25 million) for the transformation of a former warehouse to a new sustainable and contemporary city hall; 2017: Newburgh Road, Downriver Chapter Winner (Transportation greater than $5 million) for road improvements between Ford Road and Warren Road; 2018: Parkwood Bennington, Downriver Chapter Winner (Transportation less than $5 million) for road improvements and water main replacement and in 2019: Central City Park Pavilion, Michigan State Winner (Quality of Life less than $1 million) for construction of an open air timber pavilion providing 3,225 square feet of covered space

"Creating a more walkable Westland by closing gaps in the city's sidewalk network is a core component of the city's Neighborhood Makeover Program, which launched in 2017," commented Mayor William R. Wild. "We are honored to be recognized, once again, by the APWA as this project serves as a critical component to increasing safety and walkability within the community."

scarecrow display in the fall and the spring and fall Downtown Clean-Up days. He said that representatives from the group also visit each business individually with ideas and suggestions for improving the façade of the building or building foot traffic while offering training opportunities to all businesses in the downtown district.

He explained that Wayne Main Street installed benches and bike racks downtown in a effort to improve the downtown and walkability. The group also installed and maintained the large flower pots along Michigan Avenue and Wayne Road. Wayne Main Street also established and developed Derby's Alley, which included the installation of overhead cafe lighting, picnic tables and benches, he said.

He noted that recently, Wayne Main Street assisted the Li-Brewery in obtaining a $30,000 grant from Michigan Main Street, something only possible because of the Master Level Michigan Main Street designation awarded to the local Wayne organization.

Only 22 other cities, township or villages in the state have earned such a designation, he noted.

"Just because Wayne Main Street is unable to continue does not mean that its many volunteers will not continue to help other organizations make downtown Wayne a great place to live, work and shop.

"Again, we would like to thank everyone that contributed in any way to the positive impact that Wayne Main Street has made on our community," Bradford concluded.

City-wide clean-up day is set

Wayne Main Street is partnering with members of the Rotary Club of Wayne and the Friends of the Rouge to conduct a city-wide cleanup of the roads and paths bordering the Rouge River.

The clean up event, Community and Rouge Rive Clean-Up Day, is planned for 9 a.m. until noon Saturday, April 24.

Volunteers can do as much or as little as time and energy permit. Help is needed to pick up trash along the roads or trails or many other general clean-up tasks. The project is an effort to make the city more walkable and beautiful, a Wayne Main Street spokesman said.

Social distancing and masks will be required, except in family pods. Light refreshments for volunteers will be provided.

"We need your support. By volunteering to help clean up Wayne, you can make a difference. Volunteers are encouraged to wear old clothes, masks, and bring gloves. This is a great volunteer opportunity for individuals, families, businesses, and community service groups," the spokesman added in a prepared release.

Volunteers are also asked to bring brooms, shovels, and other cleaning equipment. Trash bags will be provided.

Participants will meet at 9 a.m. April 24 at Goudy Park to begin the clean up efforts.

Sumpter

Public safety director's contract is renewed

A 3-year employment contract for Sumpter Township Public Safety Director/Police Chief Eric Luke was approved by members of the township board of trustees by a 5-2 vote last month.

The dissenting votes were cast by Trustee Peggy Morgan and Treasurer James Clark. Morgan had expressed her concerns about the contract during the study session which preceded the March 23 meeting.

"I do not feel the police chief should oversee the fire department nor the fire department oversee the police," she said during the discussion of the contract.

Trustee Matt Oddy responded that he had seen only positive reaction to the current structure in the public safety department and had not heard any negative comments regarding the situation.

"We made that move, we still have a part-time chief and we've seen great improvements. I have not heard of one negative impact," he said of the change the board members made three years ago, naming Luke as public safety director.

> Chief Joe (Januszyk) runs the fire department and Chief Luke is the point of communication. T his has worked flawlessly.

Trustee Tim Rush agreed noting that the public safety director structure is "not uncommon" and that "Chief Joe (Januszyk) runs the fire department and Chief Luke is the point of communication. This has worked flawlessly," he said.

In response to Morgan's suggestion that the board members were unaware of problems with the command structure, Oddy suggested the board members ask Januszyk.

"Yeah, there were a couple of problems but they came from township hall," Januszyk responded. He then repeatedly refused to say more as he said he was uncomfortable speaking on a public Zoom meeting.

Oddy reiterated that the overall reaction to the current system has been positive from the administrators and the firefighters.

Morgan reiterated that there were problems with the structure and suggested that Januszyk meet with the trustees "two at a time" to discuss the situation.

That suggestion prompted a caution from township attorney Rob Young who reminded the board that the public meeting was the place to discuss this type of situation and that private meetings of the kind Morgan suggested could be a violation of the Open Meetings Act.

"This is where we discuss extending contracts. This is the place for discussion. Everybody has a right to talk, to discuss this publicly," Young said.

"Well, my problem is the job description and I am going to have to decide if I am going to vote yes or no," Morgan said. "The police chief shouldn't oversee the fire department. Both should report to the supervisor. I brought it up in public and I'm giving you all my opinion," she said.

Trustee Don LaPorte who acts as the board liaison with the fire department said that he had "reached out to Chief Joe (Januszyk) and if he was unhappy I would expect he would tell me."

He noted that the public safety director structure adopted was "all budget oriented to offer administrative help in getting grants. The fire chief runs the fire hall. He always has. At times they may disagree, they need to hash it out. This is not the place for that," he said.

"I would like to have a conversation about the issue," Luke said. "I am here every day and I expect him (Januszyk) to speak with me if there is an issue with the board. I have no idea what he's talking about. This is a strange place to bring it out at a public meeting. I'd like him to let me know what issues he hasn't brought to me in the past 3 years," Luke said.

Chief Eric Luke

The contract for Luke was approved at the current salary of $103,376 annually with no changes to his job description.

able on the police and fire vehicle computers.

The program will also include a reflective sticker for the window of the home which should be placed in the room where the special needs individual is most likely to be during an emergency situation, Goode explained.

The program has seen wide success and police in another state were able to locate a missing autistic child recently by playing his favorite song through the patrol cars, attracting him from his hiding spot, Goode told the board members.

The plan includes sensory kits for all the township police patrol cars and the three fire engines. The kits include ear muffs to help control sound which can frighten special needs individuals, dark glasses to prevent the bright lights from triggering a sensory overload along with fidget toys, which can occupy a special needs person who may be involved in an incident by providing something to distract them, he explained.

The cost for the fidget toys was reduced by a $350 donation from Harbor Freight, Goode told the board members.

The fire and carbon monoxide detectors can be obtained by the township at no cost from the Michigan Bureau of Fire Services, he said and the local firefighters can help install them for residents.

"We have to let them know we offer the service," he said. "We also can help with devising escape plans and a quick inspection," he said. Goode was quick to explain that the inspections would not include any citations or fines, simply help residents devise safety plans in case of an emergency.

Goode said he will also prepare special identification cards badges for those with special needs which will detail the condition and the correct contact information.

The initial cost for the program was estimated at about $1,200, not including Goode's time, estimated at about 16 to 20 hours weekly.

Goode told the board members that he has already spoken to officials at the Van Buren school district and the Van Buren fire chief and expected to speak to the Belleville fire chief soon about the program.

Public Safety Director/Police Chief Eric Luke was enthusiastic about the program as were members of the board who unanimously approved the program.

Goode said he would report back to the board on a regular basis regarding participation and progress of the plan.

ROMULUS - BELLEVILLE

Romulus city council extends state of emergency

Members of the Romulus City Council voted unanimously in a special meeting last week to extend the state of emergency in the city and continue the COVID-19 health precautions currently in place.

Mayor LeRoy Burcroff said that the meeting was recommended by city attorney Steve Hitchcock to allow the city to conduct meetings electronically through June 30. Hitchcock explained that Elizabeth Hertel, director of the state department of Health and Human Services recently suggested that due to the increase in the number of daily cases of COVID-19 in the state, health precautions be continued through April 29. Hitchcock said that Hertel had also cited the number of hospitalizations that were increasing throughout the state and that she had recommended keeping the 25-person limit on public gatherings in place.

> "No, we are not letting up on the daily health protocols. We still self-check and observe the precautions.

"Well obviously, we can't have a public meeting limited to 25 people. We have no idea how many people might want to attend," Hitchcock said.

He also reminded the council members that Wayne County officials had declared an extended state of emergency last week based on the number of infections occurring.

"This will allow you to continue electronic meetings. The only change will be you will have to, during roll call, identify your location," he said. He clarified that the location needed only to be the city in which the respondent was located at the time of the meeting.

Councilman William Wadsworth questioned the impact on the operation of the city while Burcroff explained that the city was certainly "open for business" with the current precautions remaining in place.

"No, we are not letting up on the daily health protocols," Burcroff said. He explained that the city had meetings with department heads, but limited them to small groups and continued the recommended health precautions.

"Last week, we had a meeting with a developer with a small number of people. We still self-check and observe the precautions," he told the council members.

During the discussion, council members inquired if the continued state of emergency would impact the current moratorium on water shut-offs in the city.

Burcroff said the moratorium would continue and explained in response to a question from Councilwoman Celeste Roscoe that the city would be seeking whatever grant funds available to fund that expense.

He stressed that while the shut offs have been suspended, residents are still responsible for the payment of the bills, which continue to accrue. He said that currently 402 city residents were beyond the shut off limit in the city and that there was a total of about $38,000 due in delinquent water billings.

Councilwoman Virginia Williams suggested that residents could seek help with the water billings and other expenses due to the pandemic by contacting the MetroWayne Agency. She said the agency had been very helpful to residents throughout Wayne County facing financial hardships due to the pandemic. She said the agency could be contacted at (313)388-9799 or at waynemetro.org.

School district will not request millage on upcoming ballot

Members of the Van Buren Public Schools Board of Education have decided against placing a Sinking Fund millage on the Nov. 2 ballot. Despite a previous request from Superintendent of Schools Pete Kudlack, the issue did not come to a vote of board members following a discussion of the proposal.

The current Sinking Fund millage, set at .4917 of a mill, generates about $873,000 in tax revenue annually which can only be used for site improvements and building renovations. It will expire in 2022.

While the district currently has building repair and improvement plans for the next three years, the anticipated Sinking Fund millage revenue will fall short of the funding needed for the third year, explained Rob Kakoczki of Plante Moran CRESA during the meeting of the board members last month. He added that there is currently no funding balance for any emergency repairs included in those plans. The board has approved a plan which included projects costing $356,000 this year, $1,321,500 in 2022, and $2,020,000 in 2023.

At an earlier March meeting, Kudlak told the board members that Belleville High School is 11 years old and that the "mechanicals" in buildings throughout the district are also reaching a time when they may need replacement or repair. He said the goal of the Sinking Fund is to manage the repairs and replacements in school buildings without taking money from classrooms. At the March 22 meeting, he told the board members that he had perhaps been "a little over eager" in proposing placing a new Sinking Fund on the November ballot and explained that waiting for another year to request the funding would allow the district keep the seven year promise made to voters.

An additional concern expressed by board President Ann Pearce was the cost to the district of the election since there is nothing else yet on that ballot. She also urged the board to abide by the seven year term of the current Sinking Fund promised to voters.

Kudlak agreed and noted that the board members did not need a vote on his earlier proposal.

Northville man faces charges in restaurant break-ins

> Tulik reportedly admitted the Livonia crime while in custody in Redford.

A Northville man is facing nine charges following his arrest for breaking into restaurants in Livonia and Redford Township, all on March 15.

Mark Tulik, 49, was arraigned in 16th District Court last week on charges related to the March 15 break-in of a Livonia restaurant, according to court records. He was charged with breaking and entering a building with intent to commit a crime, two counts of fleeing and eluding police, two counts of resisting arrest and a count of possessing a burglar's tools.

He is also facing charges in 17th District Court in relation to break-ins at two Redford Township restaurants, including two counts of breaking and entering, two counts of fleeing police, two counts of resisting arrest and count of possessing a burglar's tools.

Tulik will face trial on the charges in Wayne County Circuit Court following his arraignment and probable cause conference. According to Redford police, officers responded to two break-ins within 20 minutes March 15, both at restaurants. Security video indicated the perpetrator was a man driving an older model Lincoln Town Car.

Redford officers encountered a vehicle matching the one on the surveillance video and attempted a traffic stop. The driver fled the scene but the officers obtained the vehicle license plate number and the car was quickly located in Detroit. When officers approached the vehicle, the suspect fled on foot, but was caught and arrested. He was later identified as Mark Joseph Tulik.

Redford police investigators learned that Livonia police were also investigating an early-morning March 15 break-in at a Wing Snob location on Five Mile Road. In that incident, a man is seen on video using a hammer to smash the glass in the front door of the building. That suspect left the scene in a light-colored Lincoln Town Car, matching the description of the car Tulik was driving, according to police.

Tulik reportedly admitted the Livonia crime while in custody in Redford.

According to the Michigan Department of Corrections, Tulik has previously been convicted of breaking and entering with intent to commit a crime, larceny in a building and fleeing police. He was remanded to the Wayne County Jail and was scheduled for a court appearance in Livonia today, April 8.

Spring cleaning

Inkster officials detail rules for pick-up of residential trash, compost

> Residents are required to separate grass clippings, leaves, weeds, and other soft yard waste from regular trash.

As residents throughout the area begin traditional spring cleaning, the Inkster Department of Public Service has a few cautions for those preparing to dispose of debris accumulated during the winter months.

Trash pick-up will continue on the regular weekly schedule, officials said, although specific holidays usually delay pick-up by one day. Those changes are clearly marked on the city calendar, available of the City of Inkster website.

Trash containers should be placed at the curbside after 6 p.m. the day before collection day and should be removed from the curbside before 6 p.m. the day of collection. A 95-gallon, wheeled curb cart had been provided to each household. Residents who may have more trash than the new curb cart will hold, will need to call for a special pick-up 48 hours in advance. Cardboard boxes are not acceptable trash containers. They must be broken down and thrown into the recycle container, officials said.

The trash contractor does not pick up any EPA labeled hazardous substances, including but not limited to, gasoline, acid, inflammable or explosive materials, officials reminded residents.

The pick up of bulk or heavy household items such as stoves, refrigerators, freezers, or furniture or other items that do not fit into the cart will include two such bulk items per household each week. If residents have more than two items, it will be necessary to call for a dumpster which will then be picked up on the regular pick-up day. Residents should call (844) 464-3587 at least 48 hours ahead so that the proper moving equipment will be available, officials advised. Calls should be made during regular business hours, 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Brush and compost collection will include trees, wood, shrubs and brush. If the wood contains nails, they must be bent over and the wood and brush cut and securely tied into bundles not to exceed 3 inches in diameter and no longer than 4 feet and no heavier than 50 pounds. Lawn clippings, twigs, flowers and plantings are all acceptable items for compost collection although the twigs and branches should not exceed 4 inches in diameter and 3 feet in length. Stumps, rocks, dirt, and sod are not acceptable for compost/yard waste collection.

To reduce the amount of compost/yard waste, the city hauler recommends using lawn mowers with mulching blades.

Carpet will be picked up if it is in bundles no longer than 4 feet and no heavier than 50 pounds and it must be tied and bundled.

Any resident hiring a private contractor for tree trimming/removal must require that contractor to remove any brush, logs, or stumps, officials advised.

Vacant lots in the city are the responsibility of the owner. If vacant lots are not properly maintained, the owner may receive a citation and the lot will be cut/cleaned at the owner's expense.

Complaints should be directed to Code Enforcement at (313) 563-0835 or the Department of Public Services at (313) 563-9774.

Weekly curbside collection of yard waste began this week and will end Dec. 17. Residents are required to separate grass clippings, leaves, weeds, and other soft yard waste from regular trash, officials advised.
